CHALLENGE

Intellectual property specialists at a Washington, D.C. law firm are tasked with developing their clients a comprehensive I.P. portfolio to successfully maintain and enhance their competitive position within the marketplace. The law firm needed a vendor who would provide one-of-a-kind products and service to match the one-of-a-kind designs of the firm's clients.

They looked for a vendor partner that would work with them to secure client information in a customized folder. The firm was also looking for flexibility to update or change the printing as needed. Another requirement was the need to have folders shipped on demand to their office as space onsite is at a premium.

SOLUTION

National Office Systems (NOS) provided top-quality custom-printed folders that exceeded the firm's expectations. Their Custom Premium Folders could be updated as needed and flexibility was gained. Pre-buying their supplies for the year through the Store & Ship program proved to be a cost saving decision. National Office Systems will store their folders at no additional charge which allows the firm to receive maximum discounting, save valuable storage space and have their folders ship upon demand.

"Timely constructive communication with all parties was essential in meeting the client's goals," stated Doug Herman. "Working closely with the end user and the vendor ensured a successful outcome."

With the new supply of well-made personalized folders and a strong vendor partnership, the law firm will be able to continue providing intellectual property solutions in a managed, organized, and secure manner.
